PORTFOLIO BREAKDOWN - EQUITY (LOOK-THROUGH)

MANAGER COMMENTS

Global equity markets finished summer on a high note (MSCI ACWI, +2.5% MoM) with broader participation especially by US small caps (Russell 2000, +7.0% MoM) which outperformed large caps (S&P 500, +2.0% MoM) and tech (Nasdaq 100, +0.9% MoM). The US Dollar struggled once again (DXY Index, -2.2% MoM) following the soft July inflation print (US CPI, +2.7% YoY vs 2.8% consensus) and relatively dovish remarks by Powell in Jackson Hole. US bonds rallied as yields moved lower (US10Y, -13.7bps). Across the Atlantic, British bond prices fell as long-term yields increased (UK10Y, +15.2bps) with the curve steepening further. The stronger Euro (EURUSD, +2.3% MoM) and Pound Sterling (GBPUSD, +2.1% MoM) suppressed equity returns in wide Europe (Stoxx 600, +1.0% MoM) and the UK (FTSE 100, +1.2% MoM) but both outperformed in USD. Japan also delivered an excellent August (Nikkei 225, +4.1% MoM) while the Japanese Yen strengthened against USD (USDJPY, -2.5% MoM). Onshore Chinese equities (CSI 300, +10.5% MoM) rallied on record foreign inflows, state-backed margin lending and reasonable valuations as stocks yield more than 10Y Chinese Government bonds. India (Nifty 50, -1.2% MoM) succumbed to tariff pressure, with the weighted average tariff on exports to the US now above 30% and no deal in sight. Brazil which is in a similar tariff situation surged (Bovespa, +6.3% MoM) as polls showed Sao Paulo Governor Tarcisio de Freitas leading President Lula in the 2026 election, boosting sentiment. In August, we closed our European Information Technology position as SAP grew to 30% of the ETF before the recent rebalance. In addition, we trimmed our European Real Estate exposure after decent recent performance and strong currency gains. We allocated both sale proceeds to the wider European Index.
